

Household Alkaline & Carbon Zinc Batteries should be discarded in your household trash

All other batteries should be disposed of at our Household Hazard Waste & Electronics drop off events or where batteries are sold.

Please see the back of this flyer for more information

	Battery Type	Common Uses	Hazardous Component	Disposal Method
	Carbon Zinc	Household Batteries	* None	Household Garbage
	Alkaline	Household Batteries	* None	Household Garbage
	Re-Chargeable Alkaline	Many Household Uses	*None	Household Garbage
	Mercuric Oxide (Button Batteries)	Medical Equipment	Mercury	Household Hazardous Waste or any retailer of this type of battery
	Silver Oxide (Button Batteries)	Calculators Watches Cameras	Silver	Household Hazardous Waste or any retailer of this type of battery
	Zinc – Air (Button Batteries)	Hearing Aids Pagers Cameras	Mercury	Household Hazardous Waste or any retailer of this type of battery
	Lithium	Computers Cameras	Lithium	Household Hazardous Waste  or any retailer of this type of battery
	Small Sealed Lead- Acid	Tools Camcorders	Lead	Household Hazardous Waste  or any retailer of this type of battery
	Nickel Cadmium	Smoke Alarms Tools Household Uses	Cadmium	Household Hazardous Waste  or any retailer of this type of battery
	Nickel Zinc (NI-Zn)	Cellular & Cordless Phones Cordless Power Tools Laptop Computers Remote Controlled Toys Two- Ways Radios PDA'S Cordless Products	Nickel Zinc	Household Hazardous Waste  or any retailer of this type of battery

*Since 1995 domestically produced alkaline and carbon zinc batteries contain no added mercury and are essentially mercury free.

 The city of Albany conducts multiple household hazardous waste & electronics collection events. For more info contact the Department of General Services at 434-CITY (2489) or our website at www.albanyny.gov.